

IMPROVED SERVICE REDUCED COST

The RTA has begun a phased return to normal bus and streetcar operations in an era where the health and safety of our passengers and operators is of utmost importance. The RTA board adopted its Internal State of Emergency Policy on March 24, 2020 and began operating on a reduced service model. As local restrictions eased, the agency began operating on a daily Saturday schedule. Now with more residents returning to work and increases in transit demands citywide, RTA's phased return will ensure that riders have steady access to mobility options while prioritizing safety.

More to Come!

Along with the return of service that had been reduced at the height of the pandemic, riders will also begin to experience service changes which they helped develop through the yearlong study, community outreaches and surveys conducted under the New Links Project.

These service changes come as the agency's first implementation of the New Links network redesign recommendations. The New Links Project's aim is to provide better transit connectivity throughout the region.

Due to TSA regulations, the RTA requires face masks on all closed air transit vehicles including buses, streetcars, paratransit vehicles, and indoor areas of our ferry vessels. For more information, including updated route timetables, visit www.RTAforward.org or call Rideline at 504-248-3900.
